

(Senior) Product Manager (m/f/x)

At organ.io we are dedicated to leadership development. We developed a truly innovative approach for leadership feedback and development. We are proud to already have convinced big corporations to put their trust in us and work with us. Now we want to bring our solution to the market and make it available for more companies.

If you are excited about leadership development, new and innovative ways to address big problems and building world class software, we should talk.

As (Senior) Product Manager (m/f/x) you translate our product vision into strategic goals for you and your team. You are end-to-end responsible for improving our product within your team's mission. You will work cross-functionally with customers, researchers, designers, actors and engineers to improve the user experience and develop new features for thousands of daily users.

Your tasks and responsibilities:

- Manage product delivery in an agile setting and guide your team in all sprint activities
- Align your team around strategic goals, relevant KPIs and a respective product roadmap
- Systematically create user tests, analyze user feedback and optimize user experience
- Plan and execute the product roadmap based on a objectively prioritized backlog. Decompose complex problems and write clear specifications

Your profile:

- At least 5 years of experience in multiple digital product management positions, ideally in a SaaS environment
- At least 3 years of experience in working with cross-functional teams in an agile setting applying Scrum
- Strong sense of accountability and ownership
- Excellent verbal and written communication skills
- Strong self-organization and prioritization of tasks in an analytical manner
- Preferably technical or psychological background
- Fluency in English and preferably German

Why organ.io:

- Your chance to make an impact in re-shaping leadership development and how people will think about it in 10 years time
- We live development. One of the best (leadership) coaches (20+ yrs of experience) is your supervisor and coach
- Leadership is business critical for all organizations in an agile world - help people and companies to succeed
